LOCAL NEWS.

If you see it in the Townsman, it's news to be relied upon; if it is news and so, you'll see it in the Townsman.

Remember the Republican Caucus to-night at 7.45 in the Town Hall.

Charles Bodwell left town Wednesday for a trip to Chicago and the World's Fair.

The Andover Bicycle Club will have a run to Lowell to-morrow, starting at 2 o'clock.

The Lawrence republicans elected all Greenhalge delegates at their caucuses Wednesday evening.

Prof. Ryder of the Seminary preached at the Wellesley College Church last Sunday.

Justice of the Peace Barnett Rogers was again called upon, Tuesday afternoon, to perform a marriage in the Selectmen's office. The participants were Frederic Long of Middleton and Lucy Shedd of Ballardvale.

The carriage in which Miss Alice Gray was riding to her home in the Holt District, Monday night, was quite badly damaged by running into a team standing in front of Mrs. Tilton's house on Salem Street. It was quite dark and the street light was out. Miss Gray was thrown out but fortunately escaped serious injuries.

The first pair of aluminum horse shoes ever made in Essex County were exhibited at the county fair this week by T. P. Harriman, our well known blacksmith. They are very light and handsome, and are a piece of work very creditable to Mr. Harriman, who made them. He received a gratuity of $2 on them at the fair.

The opening concert in the People's Course of entertainments, Oct. 9, will be one of the best ever presented by the management. The Columbian Concert Company contains such eminent soloists as Wulf Fries, "cello, and Mr. Staats, clarinetist, besides a prominent vocalist and reader. Such talent ought to draw a crowded house.

W. H. Goodwin, who has filled very acceptably the position of station agent at the Boston & Maine depot since the retirement of Mr. Marland, has resigned and concluded his duties there last night. Mr. Goodwin has accepted a new position in the office of the Washington Mills at Lawrence. C. A. Hazeltine, formerly station agent at Dover, N. H. will take Mr. Goodwin's place at the depot.

One of the scenes in Elm Square Monday night was two colored "genmen" rolling over each other on the grass plot in front of the Elm House. Finally one, who is well known here, got the upper hand and commenced to punch his colored brother in real pugilistic style. Quite a crowd had gathered, when someone said, "the police are coming." The uppermost man jumped up and made a hasty exit up Elm Street, while the other, who seemed to be a stranger, gathered up his traps and walked sadly off.

Of the native South African Choir, which will appear here next month, the Detroit Free Press says,—"A unique performance. The performance given last night by the African Choir is difficult to justly describe. It is a combination of a musical and descriptive entertainment which has for its object the portrayal of the difference which Christianity has effected in the lives, manners, habits and social customs of the natives of South Africa. It accomplishes its aim with marked success by rapid transits from incidents of the lower stages of uncivilization to those of more ennobling of the higher stages of civilization. The choir met with a very hearty reception last night."

Rev. C. C. Carpenter is off for a visit to the World's Fair. He started yesterday.

Prof. Ryder will preach at the South Church next Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. E. Disbrow are in town at Mrs. Manning's on Porter Street.

Prof. Harris and family are once more occupying their residence on the Hill, having returned this week from Bar Harbor.

Contractor Duffee will next lay concrete sidewalk from Chapman's corner on Main Street down to and across Locke Street, on the resident side.

To-night at 7.30 the Selectmen and School Committee meet to choose successors to Prof. Graves and Mrs. Cutler, who recently resigned from the latter board.

The new house of William Woods on Florence Street is ready for occupancy and he will soon be comfortably situated there.

The Sunday School of Christ's Church will re-open next Sunday at nine o'clock. All scholars and teachers are requested to be on hand promptly.

Supt. John E. Smith of the waterworks has purchased the former Manning residence on High Street.

James H. Smith and Mrs. Smith, who have been spending a week in town since their return from Nova Scotia, have gone to Vineland, N.J. to spend the winter.

A new sign on Daly's new block reads "P. J. Daly's Cash Store." This signifies that Mr. Daly, who has conducted a grocery store in Ballardvale, is to carry on the same business here.

The work of fitting up Bradley's building which was recently damaged by fire, has begun and will be pushed along as rapidly as possible. Hardy & Cole will do the carpenter work and E. J. Rowe the interior decorating. The Elm Club will also refit its rooms at once.

The fire company was given a little practice run Wednesday evening, an alarm being rung in about 6.45 calling the firemen to Mrs. Whittemore's house on Main Street, next the residence of Mrs. S. W. Blunt. The chimney on the ell, which was shooting out sparks quite lively for a time, was the cause for the alarm. A little salt was all that was needed to fix matters right. No damage was done.

The remains of John Driscoll of Haverhill were brought here for burial in the Catholic Cemetery last Friday afternoon. He was a young man about 23 years old and formerly lived here. His father died here several years ago from the effects of becoming over-heated while in the employ of George W. Chandler. The deceased was drowned last week in the Merrimac river. He went out in a canoe and was capsized. He started to swim ashore but sank before he could get there. He was known as a bright, honest, and respected young man. His mother still resides in Haverhill.

At the annual meeting of the State Association of congregational and Presbyterian Churches in Lancaster, N. H., last week, the opening sermon was delivered by Pres. Tucker of Dartmouth college, recently of Andover. The communion which followed was conducted in part by Rev. J. S. Colby of the Senior Class at the Seminary, who also at another session opened one of the discussions by appointment of the committee on program. Rev. H. H. Wentworth of Goffstown, a recent Andover graduate, also opened a discussion. Mr. Colby's Church at Malboro having voted him a unanimous call to remain with them at an increased salary, after six months temporary service with them, he has decided reluctantly not to return to the Seminary.

Doubtless one of the most interesting lectures in the coming People's Course of entertainments will be Mr. Lee Merriweather. He spent upwards of a year in the kingdoms of the Old World studying the condition of working men. After submitting a report to the Bureau of Labor Statistics at Washington embodying the results of his observations abroad, the Secretary of the Interior appointed him as a special agent to obtain similar information in America. The incidents—amusing and otherwise—which befell him in his intercourse with laboring-classes in foreign countries have been already published in his crisp narrative, "A Tramp Trip". His similar experiences here in his native country are now embodied in a book as animated as his first—"The Tramp at Home." The account of his journey to the Sandwich Islands, in connection with an investigation into the condition of sailors, seems more like the invention of a practised romancer than a record of actual experience.

Resigned the Treasurership.

George H. Torr has resigned the office of treasurer of the Smith & Dove Manufacturing Company, but continues his connection with the concern as one of its directors. Mr. Torr's service with this company covers a period of thirty-five years. While the company lose an efficient treasurer, still they are fortunate in retaining him as one of their counsellors. Peter D. Smith is now filling the position of treasurer.

Factories Starting Up.

The Tyer Rubber company, on account of the improved condition of the market, started this week to run full time and with full force of help. For some time the factory has been running only four days a week and the return to full time is welcomed by the employees.

Marland Mills have resumed work in part and the whole plant will probably be running next week.

Christian Endeavor.

The second annual convention of the Essex county Y. P. S. C. E. will be held with the First Congregational church, Lynn, next Wednesday afternoon and evening. The services will be presided over by Rev. C. P. Mills of Newburyport.

The program includes three minutes reports from each local union, addresses by C. E. Allen, president of the Boston local union, Hon. M. M. Taylor of Worcester, Miss Grace D. Hyde of Chelsea, Rev. T. B. Johnson, Lynn, Rev. E. P. Farnham, Salem; Rev. J. L. Hill, D. D., Medford; Rev. W. H. G. Temple, D. D., South Boston. There will be a reception and supper from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Democratic Caucus.

The Democratic Caucus, to choose delegates to the various approaching party conventions, will be held in the Town Hall next Monday evening. The meeting will be called to order at 7.45 by the chairman of the Town Committee.

Quarterly Temperance Meeting.

The regular union quarterly temperance meeting will be held at the Free Church next Sunday evening at 7.15 o'clock. An address will be given by Rev. S. B. Dunn of Boston on "The Temperance Broom: or A Clean Sweep." Mr. Dunn is a well-known lecturer and his addresses are said to be especially adapted to temperance work, vivid in style, interesting and such as will please an Andover audience. He is characterized as one of the best lecturers on the subject in the state. A large audience should be present to hear him.

Thirsty Printers.

William Murphy of South Boston and James Ryan of Quincy, two tramp printers, were before Judge Poor last Friday afternoon for stealing milk. Evidently they were a little thirsty after their walk and seeing a can of milk on the doorsteps of M. T. Walsh on Essex Street, they emptied it of the contents. Night watchman Mears arrested them. They were sentenced to pay a fine of $5 or to go up for 30 days. They preferred the latter.

Sunday School Convention.

The Lawrence district Sunday school association, including all the evangelical Sunday schools of Andover, Ballardvale, Lawrence, Methuen, and North Andover, will meet in general convention at the Trinity Congregational church, Lawrence, on Thursday afternoon and evening, Sept. 28. Everything has been done to make this convention one of the largest and best ever held in this section of the state. Prominent Sunday school workers of the various denominations will take part in the program.

M. E. Austin & Company of Lawrence call the attention of Townsman readers to their complete stock of lanterns, fibre ware and all hardware and milk supplies. Everything in this line can be found there.

Another Week at the Fair.

Almost by chance our first day of the second week in Chicago found us in the Mines and Mining Building. We had not intended to give this exhibit very much time, and were surprised when 2 o'clock found us still intensely interested in our world's products of the earth.

No branch of the world's industry has seen a more constantly improving method of developing that industry than mining, and this building at the fair is full of new and interesting machinery for manipulating earth and rock, and producing therefrom metals and gems. One of the first exhibits to attract our attention as we entered was the rock crushing and carrying model of the Gates Iron Co., the concern to which so much credit is due for making it possible to use crushed stone in road building cheaply and satisfactorily. Here, as in so many other exhibits where great bulks are to be moved, one is impressed with the many appliances by which man is almost entirely relieved of actual labor, the lifting and hauling being all put upon the engine, the workmen being simply a guiding power. Elevators to lift the rock, steam shovels to remove the earth, railways to carry stone to the crushers, aprons and carrying racks, all work into each other so smoothly as to make one think it is only fun to work a stone crusher.

Each state in our country and each foreign nation has a separate exhibit in this building, and one could spend hours in some of our western wonders, examining the shows of stones and minerals. Wyoming, with her sandstones, asbestos, and petroleum, makes a fine display, and near at hand Minnesota shows an iron mine model that gives one a clear idea of how the shafts are sunk into the ground and the underground alleys are formed. One cannot help wondering how a man can feel he is on terra firma when he walks in the mining regions with the knowledge that under him is a complete network of roadways and shafts supported by logs and planks. Louisiana suggests Edward Bellamy with its statue of Lot's wife in salt, which well represents one of the large products of that state. It was a trifle bad taste to see people lap their fingers and touch this same statue to see if she really was once Lot's wife, but she was.

In Alabama you are induced to taste a mineral water that you'll taste forever afterward if you duplicate our experience; ugly! but it was bitter, and really ought to produce all the wonders claimed for it, for its disagreeable qualities. We didn't linger long in New Jersey, for they forgot to send their biggest product, mosquitos. Oregon makes a grand show with her wealth of gold, silver, copper, and iron, and one cannot help being much impressed by all the wealth she shows, as her endowment by nature. Pearls from Wisconsin, gold and onyx, beautiful onyx, from California, petrified wood, that rivals in brilliant coloring the very gems of earth, from Dakota, all make a variety in the great wealth of our western states.

Virginia's exhibit had a specially local interest as we beheld some beautiful "Bertha Zinc," made up into statues, lamp bases, etc., by "The Craighead & Kintz Co., of Ballardvale." A beautiful product and beautiful castings.

New York makes an interesting exhibit of road material, and if her roads are well covered with such excellent rock as is shown, they must be good.

Nevada is known as a silver state, but there is a display of "Sulphur, refined in Inferno" that has a peculiar suggestiveness of Hades regions. I told my readers last week that Ada Rehan's statue was in the Liberal Arts Building. I want to now correct that statement, for it is here that it is to be found, in Montana's exhibits, and $300,000 is what it represents.

One of the most interesting exhibits in this building is seen in the gallery, and is made by that great monopoly, the Standard Oil Co. Every product of petroleum save one, the vaseline, is shown here, and the information to be obtained from the attendants gives one a very good idea of what a tremendous business is represented. The glass jars of oil of all kinds are very beautiful, and candles and maps add to the display. A large relief map locates the thousand different wells and pipe lines, and the whole makes a show in itself.

Frick's Coke Works model in the same gallery also had a peculiar interest for us because we had passed through Connelville, the home of the works, on our way out. Probably not everyone will be as interested in this building as we were, but a few hours must be spared by everyone, devoted to seeing the exhibit in the Mines and Mining Building.

We made our first jaunt down the Midway Plaisance after dinner, thus taking ourselves in a few minutes from the solid, substantial business of life to probably the greatest collection of the whole world's frivolities and humbugs that was ever gotten together. The Midway Plaisance of the World's Fair is a show never to be forgotten, a humbug beyond even Barnum's dream, a licensed beer garden without parallel, and a world's congress of real life beyond description all in one, and almost one in all. But the visitor mustn't miss any of it, the Midway is the greatest "feature" of the fair, and not a "fake" or a swindle, or a real attraction, of which there are so many, should be passed by.

I must confess as I walked down that broad avenue, heard the cries in front of every village or display, and saw the almost countless signs of "Beer, 5c.," that dotted every view, that my first impression was one of disgust that an exposition so grand should put its seal on such a collection. But it took only a few hours of looking at this same collection to have that disgust turn to suffrance, then to satisfaction, and then to delight.

The fakes are enjoyed as only an American knows how to enjoy being swindled, and you even go in again, with your eyes wide open, to experience a sensation that is so novel. Beer you overlook because it is Chicago, and only the very abstemious refrain from indulging, in such an atmosphere as this.

You will never forget the cries; what quaint and original characters they are! See this man calling the charms of the Indian Village, with a story as long as your arm, told in one tone from beginning to end and with the solemnity of a camp meeting. See that Persian with a red shirt and other flaring costume frantically crying the Persian Village attractions, and one stops to listen from the very force of the man's "Here!! Here!!! see dancing girls!" Farther along you see a statue of a Mexican, "perfectly lifelike" you hear someone say, "yes, alive" says another, and even as you gaze on the passive features, the "statue" turns and walks into the village. Indeed, there is everything here to attract the visitors' attention and get him inside the grounds at 10c. to 50c. a head.

The Javanese Village is one of the very best of all the various villages in the Midway. The entire area they occupy is surrounded by a closely latticed fence, made of the native reeds and very nicely woven together by the native workmen. There are about thirty-five buildings, low and covered with a close, heavy thatching. The people are a pretty and attractive people, especially the younger ones, and appear to be very intelligent. They are very short, not over four and a half feet tall, and are of a light coffee color. As one enters the enclosure a tapping noise is heard that comes from a wheel worked by a stream of water; the wheel strikes some sticks in turning, and produces the noise. This is a praying machine. Most of the Javanese are barefooted, and wear only a piece of calico around the hips.

Their theatre is an interesting place, and the performances very entertaining. A band of about twenty musicians make a noise to accompany the play, which is a kind of drama. The noise is really the nearest approach to music we heard in any of the foreign theatres, and when at the close they played "Yankee Doodle" and "Star Spangled Banner" they really made music. The play is a queer affair; the actors wear hideous masks and do all their acting in pantomime. The conversation in the play is carried on by a really wonderful performer hidden back of the scene, who makes a different laugh and tone for each actor, and shows himself in every way a remarkable elocutionist. This show lasts about a half-hour, and is well worth a visit. You are imprompted to buy something as you pass their bazaar in leaving, and many rather pretty things are offered for sale. Taken as a whole this show seemed to us to be the most genuine and most worthy of any on the Plaisance.

We passed on to the Chinese Village on this our first Midway tour, but did not stay long as there seemed but little new or attractive here. It is hardly more than a great bazaar with Chinese bric-a-brac for sale, and many Chinamen to sell it.

But my story spins out, and I must leave more for next week's article.

Wildcat Banks.

Mr. J. B. McMaster, in his paper in the September Atlantic on Wildcat Banking in the Teens, gives a vivid picture of the evils of an era of paper money.

To the evils produced by so debased a paper currency, coming from more than four hundred sources of issue, from banks with charters, from banks without charters, from cities, from towns, from individuals, from importing companies and exporting companies, from factories, and from the treasury of the United States,—must be added yet other evils which sprang from the opportunities such a currency afforded rogues and sharpers. Men without consciences printed their change bills on paper so bad that it fell to pieces in the pockets of the takers. Counterfeiters plied their shameful trade so successfully that hundreds of thousands of dollars of false notes were soon afloat in the country. One gang made its headquarters in Indian Territory. Another had its presses somewhere on the Hudson. Four members of the Western gang, who were captured at Harrisburg, had in their values $350,000 of counterfeit notes of the Miami Exporting Company of Ohio. A member of the Eastern gang, when caught, had with him counterfeit notes of every important bank along the seaboard, from Savannah to Albany. The newspapers all over the country were full of notices of false bank notes, and what was quite as bad, of notes of banks which had no existence. These wildcat institutions were the creation of a class of men who would have thought counterfeiting infamous. Two or three of them would associate, select a name and a city, have plates engraved in the best and most artistic manner, print bills of all denominations, and sell them to the exchange brokers, or pass them off in cities far away from the place where the bank was supposed to be located. New York as a great commercial centre, was a favorite spot, and in it many such imaginary institutions were located. One, taking the name of the City Exchange Bank, and claiming to have $2,000,000 of capital, scattered tens of thousands of dollars in notes all over the South. Another, called the Merchants and Mechanics' Exchange Company, victimized the people of Augusta, of Fayetteville, and of Charleston. Notes of a third, the Ohio Exporting and Importing Company, appeared at Trenton, at Philadelphia, and in West Virginia. The owners of a fourth, known as the Commercial Bank, did a thriving business from Cooperstown to Buffalo.

Mark Twain's New Stories.

The Century Co. has bought well nigh the complete literary "out-put" of Mark Twain during his year of residence abroad, and both The Century and St. Nicholas will have serial stories by this popular humorist among the attractions of the new year. For The Century he has written a novel which is said to abound with humorous and dramatic incident, and in some chapters to be a revelation of tragic power. Its plot includes a most ingenious employment of science in the detection of crime. It is called "Pudd'nhead Wilson" and like "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer" is a story of a Mississippi steamboat town.

For the boy and girl readers of St. Nicholas he has written "Tom Sawyer Abroad," being the adventures of Tom Sawyer, accompanied by Huckleberry Finn and the negro "Jim," in the Eastern Hemisphere,—which is not reached in the ordinary way, but accidentally, as it were, and in a flying-machine.

WITH FINGER TIPS.

HOW HELEN KELLER WAS TAUGHT THE NAMES OF THINGS.

Something of the Method Explained by Her Tireless Instructress—A Face That Mirrors a Soul Which Knows Naught of the Appearance of Sin.

The most interesting feature of the educational congress was the appearance of Helen Keller under the kind and skillful guidance of Miss Annie M. Sullivan, her teacher. When a babe, Helen Keller became blind, deaf and dumb. When Miss Sullivan, a young woman of unusual beauty of form, and feature, stood before the audience beside a girl who, except for the sad sign of blindness in the large eyes, gave promise of still greater beauty, her face glistening with a rapture that painters try to express in the ecstasy of angels, hearts seemed to stand still. It was a face that had never consciously looked on the distortions of passion or pain—the mirror of a soul that could not imagine the outward appearance of sin nor remember any of the disorders of life.

In her presence it was hard to appreciate the fact that her world lay within ours, without sun, music or speech. No one who saw it will forget the impulsive fluttering of her young, white hand as it sought her teacher's face or round, white throat; the satisfaction when the contact of her delicate white finger tips gave her what sight gives us; the flash of light over her face when, with her forefinger resting on her teacher's lip, she read the answer to the question she had asked by the twinkling digital movements in her teacher's palm. There were those who wept when she repeated audibly, with a depth of feeling she alone can feel:

Tell me not in mournful numbers
Life is but an empty dream.

All were invited to ask questions, yet not many did so. The occasion seemed sacred.

"How did you teach her the first word?" some one ventured at last.

"Her first word was 'doll,'" was the answer. "I gave her the doll, placed her finger on my lip and spoke the word. When she wearied of the doll, I took it from her, and when I returned it again gave the movement of the lips. The second word was 'mug.' I used the cup from which she drank, but became convinced that she had not a clear idea of the name, but that it meant to her also water or drink. So I one day took her to the pump, and as the water was flowing into her cup had her hold her hand in the stream, and then putting her finger on my lip gave her the word 'water.' Then I again gave her the word 'mug.' The idea that everything had a name, the comprehension of nouns, was a great revelation to her and came then and all at once. She was greatly excited. A nurse, with the baby sister in her arms, was standing near. Helen immediately put her hand on its face to know its name. I told her 'baby,' and she caught it at once. Then she stooped down and patted the ground to know what it was called. She learned many words that day, and those words she never forgot."

"How soon after she learned words did she frame sentences?"

"Immediately."

"Were verbs harder to learn than nouns?"

"Not at all. I began with such words as 'sit,' 'stand' and the like that were easy to illustrate. Prepositions troubled her most."

"How does she get an idea of the abstract?"

"I cannot tell. It seems to be with her, or it comes."

"Has she any distinguishing sense of musical vibrations?"

"Yes, very distinct. She likes music."

"Is her vocabulary large?"

"Very large. She expresses herself fluently and is choice of words."

"What books does she like best?"

Every now and then the white fingers fluttered to the teacher's face for just one delicate touch—a finger look it was—and now they rested, on Miss Sullivan's lip:

"Tell—the—people—what—books— you—like—best."

Helen's face was an open book of her mental processes. She repeated each word after Miss Sullivan, but hesitated a little on the words "tell" and "you," the brightness of her face dimming for the instant. As soon as she comprehended the question, which she did in advance of its completion, the flash of intelligence came, and when she turned toward the audience, for she did not seem at any time to lose her location, she said with spirit:

"Oh, I have read so much that it is very hard to say what I like best, but"—waiting a moment—"Little Lord Fauntleroy"—And then followed rapidly the names of several works, some of which, it would seem, could hardly be understood by any one who cannot know sound and color.

"How do you read?"

"By raised letters and by my teacher."

"I noticed when you pronounced for her you articulated with an exaggerated motion of the lips," said one. "Is not that necessary?"

"Her teaching was begun in that way. I do not think it is necessary or best. I attribute the peculiarity of her voice to that mechanical action which she uses. I think it would have been better and just as easy if she had been spoken to with the usual movement."

In reply to the question of her knowledge of the abstract, General Fulton remarked that the greatest development in the case of Helen Keller was that of the spiritual.—Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

Professor Pease.

Much as our citizens regretted the departure of Dr. Tucker from Andover, they could not overlook the fact, that the demand of the Seminary called for a successor, who should be worthy to succeed so able and excellent a gentleman as Dr. Tucker had always proved himself to be.

In the election of Mr. Pease to this position the trustees have evidently made no mistake and the Seminary is assured of a continuance of the broad, intelligent leadership that marked Prof. Tucker's work.

In a hospitable, hearty adoption of Prof. Pease into Andover citizenship, our citizens at large will likewise make no mistake. The pleasant words said of him in his Malden home, and the stamp of the man himself, assures us that not only has another real force been added to Andover's educational power, but to Andover's citizenship we welcome one, who will always be deeply interested in the town and its best progress.

The "hustler" is getting there and all signs point now to the nomination of Mr. Greenhalge, as republican candidate for governor. While a large number of the republicans of Massachusetts are not unfavorable to Mr.
Greenhalge for the office, there is yet a very wide spread dissatisfaction with the methods employed by his leaders to bring about his nomination. It is a blot on our political system that no longer the office seeks the man but rather the man seeks the office with a brass band and drum corps.

Mr. Greenhalge is a man of ability, rather inclined to the froth of affairs,
but a gentleman who would make an excellent governor. As to his strength as a candidate, that can be better told on election day than now; but on general principles, a defeated candidate for one office is not the most available for another. We still believe that the strength before the votes of the leading candidate of the republican party, for governor, is in the order of Pillsbury, Hart, Greenhalge, but the scripture is more than likely to be changed, and the order to be reversed.

In connection with the campaign for Mr. Greenhalge it is a noticeable fact that the democratic papers seem loudest in the demand for his nomination.
It is a little significant when one sees the very friendly interest, that such papers as the Globe, Herald and Post take in Greenhalge's nomination.

If Supt. Lovejoy sees the chance to do it without much expense, he can do a job that will be very much appreciated by building a sidewalk from Donald's Ink Factory, Frye Village, to the Lawrence line.

Fire Losses.

Statistics give the value of property destroyed in this country in 1892 $152,- 000,000. In 1883 it was over $100,000,- 000 and has annually increased since.
No wonder that the companies' talk of increasing rates. At one time it was thought that incendiarism was a large factor in these losses, but it is now agreed that the main cause is to be found in the cheap and hastily constructed buildings, with defective flues and other drawbacks. The way to counteract this evil in cities and towns is to have a rigid system of inspection that will prevent the erection of such dangerous buildings. Between the fire demon and the storm king the average edifice of laths, plaster, paint and glass has few chances of escape.

ness. Then remember that Hood's Sarsaparilla

Phillips Andover Alumni.

The Morning Journal contains quite a long article under the heading to the effect that a portion of the alumni are to petition the legislature for a more liberal representative on the Board of Trustees. It says:

One of the interesting petitions for legislation that will be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, bringing the matter to the attention of the next General Court, in accordance with the statutes, will be that of certain members of the alumni of Phillips Academy, Andover. The petition will ask for an amendment of the charter of the corporation known as the Trustees of Phillips Academy, Andover, which was granted about 115 years ago.

The institution is practically a close corporation, and the friends of higher education in this great preparatory school think there should be a change in the state of affairs.

About 20 years ago Rev. Cecil F. P.
Bancroft, Ph. D., became principal of the Academy, then suffering from a disorganization following the death of Dr. Samuel H. Taylor, who for 30 years was the famous principal. Dr. Bancroft during his incumbency has in some instances been strict, while in others he has been more lenient. He has at all times, however, exercised his extreme tact toward strengthening his personal hold upon the institution. In a great measure this has resulted in an undoubted benefit to the institution.
He has raised large sums of money for new buildings, and has been actively foremost in the establishment of scholarships and professorships.

But it has seemed that there has been an intention to fill the vacancies in the Board of Trustees with gentlemen, some earnest, some venerable, able, and respected, and many with other affairs which demanded their attention.

Hon. Robert B. Bishop is a trustee, and his legal duties, which are of no inconsiderable burden, naturally preclude his giving a large share of his time to the academy. Rev. Dr. Fisk of Newburyport, a venerable man and loved by all who know him, is now in poor health, and can take but a kindly interest in the affairs. Mr. Alpheus H.
Hardy of Boston, whose duties as railroad director and curator of trust funds, is treasurer of the corporation, and perhaps, the most active and efficient man upon the board, Dr. C. F. P.
Bancroft is the clerk.

Among the other members of the board are found Rev. Dr. Wellman of Malden well known as one of the plaintiffs in the famous Andover controversy, and Dr. Wilcox of Malden.

There have been times when, in violation of the charter, the clerical members of the board have outnumbered the laymen. Other omissions that are specified in the petition are of an exceedingly vital character. Lovers of the school and those among the younger alumni most of them warm admirers and pupils of Dr. Bancroft, have concluded that the spirit of the times and the general tendency in the government of educational institutions toward giving an elective voice to the alumni, demand that the change be made, so that in the Phillips Andover Academy, like all the advanced institutions, the graduate shall have a personal and representative interest in the welfare of the school. "The only way to arrive at this deserved end," remarked a member of the alumni, "is through new legislation."

A Townsman representative called
Dr. Bancroft's attention to the article this morning and asked for his views upon it. He had not seen it before, and said that he had not heard of any such contemplated action, but thought it might be very probable, as the tendency in educational institutions is to allow the alumni more voice in the conduct of affairs. Certainly the success of just such a change at Harvard and other institutions should argue favorably for the success of the petition.

A Little Tale.

A certain young man takes a certain walk on a certain street, certain nights in each week, on a certain errand bent.
The errand accomplished regularly and happily, a certain air is taken on by this certain young man as he turns his steps homeward. He is happy; he treads lightly; not the birds with their soft, sleeping tones, or even the pretty little black and white "kitten" is noted by this certain young man. But "black and white kittens" that roam in the night and wait an aroma more intense than agreeable, are not always to be ignored. "You see me and get out, or I'll see you and get you out" seems to be the motto on their headlight, and our certain young man was "seen" and "got out." He didn't tell the tale, but he had to run a graveyard for a few days, and it leaked out.

What means this constant shoveling,
In the region of the press,
This constant turning of that dirt Growing never more, or never less?

Why, a certain man went walking
To the place where he was hidden,
And in lofty air returning,
Never saw the striped "kitten."

But the "kitten" saw the "walker."
Saw him as he came afar,
The result was scented garments,
Not yet freed from earth and tar.

He'll not overlook such creatures
As are found out late at night,
When again he goes out walking:
Least if they be "black and white."

us to say that after next week no more service pipes will be put in this season.

PROF. PEASE.

Inauguration Ceremonies at the Seminary.

The opening of the fall term of the Theological Seminary, Wednesday, had more than the ordinary interest from the fact that it marked the inauguration into office of Dr. Tucker's successor, Rev.
Theodore C. Pease, who in the early part of the summer was elected to the chair of sacred rhetoric and pastoral theology.
The exercises were public, being held in the stone chapel. Among those present were members of the Boards of Visitors and Trustees, clergymen from various parts of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, professors, students, townspeople, and many of Mr. Pease's former parishioners at Malden.

The exercises were presided over by Rev. Dr. D. T. Fiske of Newburyport, president of the Board of Trustees, and were participated in by Rev. C. L. Noyes of Somerville, who gave the prayer of invocation, by Prof. Churchill, who read from the scriptures, and by Dr. Fiske, who made the installing prayer. Dr.
Pease read and signed the famous Andover creed, which was listened to with great interest, after which he was given the obligation and welcomed in behalf of the Board of trustees by Dr. Fiske.

Prof. Pease then proceeded to deliver his inaugural address, the general subject of which was "Some of the distinctive claims and attractions of the Christian ministry of to-day." It was an able address, of high literary quality, liberal, progressive, earnest, and spiritual, and though quite long, it held the closest attention of the audience. He at first refuted the claims made in many quarters that the profession of the Christian ministry is losing its power and deteriorating in the quality of its recruits. The changed social and religious conditions of our time, and the enlarged opportunities open to the preacher who is in touch with the life of this generation, were pointed out very distinctly.

There is an intense feeling for movement, progress, and life, he said, and the Christian minister must feel this onward movement, and then give himself to the service of men according to the strength that in him lies. He must recognize that investigation and criticism have thrown a flood of light on the Bible, and he must go forward looking for more light and be prepared to serve his fellow men with all the strength at his command, and with all the skill his learning and opportunities give to him. The clergyman no longer exerts the controlling influence in the community that he once did, but his position can be just as helpful and useful as ever. He is no longer the only educated or literary man in town, for many of his parishioners are better informed than he, and he must realize these things.

The work of the Christian minister is to do good, and his mission is that of humanity. The general advances in education and other matters have put the clergyman out of his old relations, but have opened up new opportunities and defined his field of work. The ministerial office will not degenerate, nor will the minister be out of business, if only he be faithful to his high calling to help mankind. In this service he can find ample scope for the exercise of all his powers.

At the conclusion of the exercises Prof.
Pease was warmly congratulated on all sides, and the general impression is that the trustees have made a fortunate selection for Pres. Tucker's successor.

Rev. Dr. Theodore C. Pease, the new professor of homiletics at the Theological Seminary, while comparatively speaking a young man, has yet shown marked ability in biblical attainments and critical faculty and in every way seems to be well fitted for his new position. He graduated from Harvard College in 1875 and afterward entered the Andover Seminary, graduating in 1880. The following four years he was a pastor at West Lebanon, N. H., and was then called to the Congregational Church in Malden, where he labored up to this summer with more than marked success and was much beloved by his parishioners.

Prohibition Rally.

We wish to correct an error that occurred in our paper last week in regard to the time of this rally. Our types made us say the 26th when it should have been the 23rd. Remember then tomorrow evening in the town hall 7.45 o'clock. Our Prohibition friends are such a man as Dr. Bancroft to address them on their favorite topic. He is widely known as an earnest reformer and eloquent speaker, and will interest any audience who will give him a hearing whatever may be their political notions. Addresses are specially invited.

Matrimonial Events.

YOUNG-TASKER.

The marriage of Ernest L. Young, son of our well known painter Levi C. Young, to Miss Emma M. Tasker, daughter of Geo. A. Tasker, the Lawrence confectioner, occurred Tuesday evening at the bride's home on Berkley Street, Lawrence. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederic Palmer of this town, in the parlors which were prettily decorated for the occasion. Only immediate relatives of the participants were present.
Miss Josie Adolphson of Springfield was bridesmaid and Miss Esther M. Young, a sister of the groom, was maid of honor.
George Richardson of this town acted as best man. After the ceremony congratulations were in order and a collation was served.

They left on the 9.30 train for a short wedding trip after which they will reside at 103 Berkley Street and will be at home after Oct. 20. They were the recipients of many pretty presents for household use and adornment.

ABBOTT-BODWELL.

Two of our well-known young people embarked on the matrimonial sea Tuesday night, Allen F. Abbott, an employe of Hardy & Cole, and Eva Estelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lewis Bodwell, being quietly married at the home of Andrew McTernon on Florence Street. The bride party marched into the parlor to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March, where the nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Geo. R. Noyes of the Unitarian Church, North Andover.

Misses Amelia Connell and Grace Abbott were bridesmaids, while the groom was unattended. Only the families of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony. The house was very prettily decorated with flowers and plants.
After a wedding lunch and showers of congratulations, rice, and old shoes, the new couple departed on the 9.40 train for Boston. Upon their return they will reside at the Whittier house on Summer Street. Their many presents from relatives and friends made a handsome display. They will be at home after Oct. 3.

Tickets for People's Course.

The sale of seats for the People's Course will be held at the Town Hall next Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock.

The prices of tickets will be precisely the same as last year, viz: The centre and right side of the hall will be reserved back to and including settee N, the price for tickets being one dollar. Tickets admitting to all other parts of the hall will be seventy-five cents, and if desired at the time of purchase reserved seats will be given on those tickets in the centre and right side, back of settee N, same as in previous years.

The tickets for unreserved seats, sold at seventy-five cents, may be obtained at the Hall any time during the evening, or afterward at the Andover Bookstore as usual, and any unsold reserved seats will also be for sale at the same place.
Single admission tickets to lectures or concerts twenty-five cents. Doors open at 7.15 o'clock. Lectures begin at 7.45.
At the concert doors will be closed during the performance of the opening numbers.

Rev. Lewis A. Banks D. D.

The following is a brief sketch of the career and character of the man who is to speak in the town hall to-morrow evening, Sept. 23. It will be something to see and hear such a man whatever one's views on political or social questions:

Rev. Lewis Albert Banks, D. D., Prohibition candidate for Governor, was born at Cornwallis, Ore., in 1855. He was educated in the public schools and at Philomath College of that State. In 1883 he was ordained an elder in the Oregon Conference of the M. E. Church, and has since served pastorates in Por-land, Ore., Boise City, Idaho, Vancouver and Seattle, Wash., and Cincinnati, Ohio.
Since 1893 he has been a pastor in Boston,
where he has had marked success.
While in Vancouver he edited The Pacific Censor, State organ of the Washington Temperance Alliance, and so enraged the liquor dealers that in 1880 he was shot down on the streets by one of their agents. For two months he preached, reclining across chairs, to eager crowds.

DEATH IN THE STORM.

PITILESS WORK OF THE GIANT TWINS, WIND AND WAVE.How Cruel at Times Seems the Ocean—The Most Populous Cemetery on the Planet.
The Land the Book Tells of Where
"There Shall Be No More Sea."And there was no more sea.—Revelation xvi. 1.

What a strange mystery the ocean is! Sometimes it holds your little craft as tenderly as a mother holds her child, and you wonder that the charge of caprice can be brought against it. At other times it is like an angry ogre who has a tyrant's power and uses it like a tyrant.

It is a marvelous sight, a spectacle of thrilling magnificence which makes the blood tingle, to stand on the beach at such a time and watch the serried columns of white capped rollers dash themselves to pieces on the sands. They remind you of Napoleon's army at Waterloo, which had wandered over Europe with victorious banners, which dreamed of no force which could resist its progress, but suddenly found itself face to face with its master, and then, with uncontrolled madness, threw itself to death as well as to defeat. The huge array of white capped monarchs, thinking themselves invincible, attack the shore with ferocious energy and pound themselves to spray. The heart beats wildly as this great battle between sea and land fills the air with thunder, and poet and painter come from far to witness the conflict and describe its glories with pen and brush.

But how cruel the ocean can be when it catches our craft at a disadvantage! Wind and waves in unholy alliance, a compact of death, make the world's cheek blanch with horror as the work of destruction goes on. These twin giants seem to be moved by a common hatred of whatever floats, and as though every vessel was an intruder on their domain tear it to pieces and doom it to disaster. The sails are cut into tatters, their masts are torn away as though the rigging were made of pack thread, and the huge hull is either sent to the bottom or thrown high on the beach in disdain. The sun in very pity creeps behind the veiling clouds for awhile, and when it shines again, after the waves have subsided and the tempest has spent itself, the coast is strewn with wrecks and many a brave sailor lies with upturned face on the sands.

That was sad news which flashed over the wires one Thursday morning. One story followed on the heels of another until disaster seemed to be multiplied by itself, and each account was more pitiful than the last. A fisherman out-rode the gale for awhile and then went down with all hands; a sturdy freighter off Hatteras was dismasted, sprang a leak and sank, leaving only one survivor to tell the tale; scores of lesser craft were torn from their anchorage, and the Jersey shore was literally strewn with wreckage. Other vessels which had managed to outlive the hurricane were towed into harbor, either the captain or part of the crew missing.

The book of Revelation tells us that in that other country from whose bourne no traveler returns "there shall be no more sea," and on this Sunday morning we breathe a sigh of relief over the statement. We can dispense with its magnificence if we may be rid of its dangers. It has devoured millions of property and is the most populous cemetery on the planet. When the sea gives up its dead, a countless multitude of the lost will reappear.

But we are specially impressed with the lesson which the great storm emphasizes—namely, the uncertainty of life. On the ocean the unexpected happens more frequently than elsewhere. At one moment a cloudless sky and a musical ripple along the vessel's side. The long roll lifts the craft, which lazily yields to the rhythmic motion of the waters. But danger is in ambush, and after a little the puff of wind grows stronger, the long roll is plumed with a white crest, the tempest sounds its trumpet, and the rigging, like the strings of an aeolian harp, emits a mournful note like that of a dirge. In another half hour the whole artillery of nature is at work, the moaning vessel is thrown on her beam ends and creaks and groans as though crying for mercy. In another hour there is nothing visible except some struggling sailor clinging to a spar.

However, death has many ways of achieving its purpose. Not on the sea alone, but on the land, it does its daily stint, and it behooves us to remember that sooner or later it will have something to say to us. "All men may die, but I shall live," is the dream of heedlessness. "All men must die, and therefore I," is the fact that is to be recognized and prepared for.

But we can become indifferent even to this "last enemy." It is not the glum indifference of desperate despair, but the cheerful indifference of perfect faith. If we have no place to go to, it is hard to contemplate our exit. But if there is a better place, a residence in which will be added happiness, we may even shake hands with Death, tell him that our latchstring is always out and he will be welcome whenever he sees fit to come. It is the fear of taking a leap in the dark that bids us pause. But if we are sure of taking a leap into the light we can easily let go our hold on this rugged life and drop into the life to come. The sea may rage as it pleases if our next port of entry is heaven, and lurking accidents and diseases may come out of their hiding places into the open, for at the worst they can only do us a good turn by opening the door of a larger and better house to live in.—New York Herald.

A Story About Painting.

The story is told that a woman once asked St. Francis de Sales whether she might use paint to improve her complexion. His reply was: "Some holy men object to its use, while others see nothing wrong in it. I would adopt a middle course and grant you a dispensation to paint one side of your face only."—New York Times.

RILEY'S FAILING.

The Hoosier Poet Makes Confession of a Troublesome Weakness.

James Whitcomb Riley, the poet, describes himself as a train misser. A friend thus relates how the poet confesses his weakness:

I found him occupying an easy chair in a parlor car that was attached to a train leaving Chicago at 10:30 a. m. for Indianapolis. After the greetings, in that quaintly humorous strain that has made the man and his writing so popular, he described the trial he meets with as a traveler:

"I have been in the depot three hours waiting for this train to start for Indianapolis."

"Why did you come here three hours before traintime?—10:30 is its leaving time."

"Well, you know I am a train misser. I can't make a train. It doesn't make any difference what precautions I take, I miss it or take the wrong train. I got my ticket yesterday—bought it over the 'Monon route' because I knew it went right through without change. If I ever have to change cars, I'm lost. I am sure to miss the connection or take the wrong train. I had a messenger boy go with me to the ticket office. Never could have found it myself. When I got to the hotel after the entertainment last night, I asked the clerk what time the 'Monon' train left for Indianapolis."

"Monon—Monon," said he; "hasn't that road got another name?"

"It probably has. It would be just like these railroads to change the name immediately after I bought my ticket." Then he looked at one of those brain splitting time cards and said:

"Yes! yes! Monon route—that's the L. N. A. and A. C. railway, and it leaves at 8 a. m."

"I left a call for 6:30, so I could have my breakfast and be at the depot at 7:30. I always go to the depot 30 minutes before the train leaves, and then I miss it oftener than I catch it. When I presented my ticket to the gatekeeper, he said: 'Your train leaves at 10:30.' That was so, and here I have been since 7:30."

"Bill Nye says that when my head was built they ran out of gray matter when they came to fill my bump of location, and they filled it with mayonnaise dressing, and that's a pretty hard thing for a man to think with."—Detroit Free Press.

A Courageous Corporal.

When Lord Rawdon was in South Carolina, he had to send an express of great importance through a part of the country filled with continental troops.

A corporal of the Seventeenth dragoons, known for his courage and intelligence, was selected to escort it.

They had not proceeded far when they were fired upon, the express was killed and the corporal wounded in the side. Careless of his wound, he thought only of his duty. He snatched the dispatch from the dying man and rode on till, from the loss of blood, he fell. Then fearing the dispatch would be taken by his enemy, he thrust it into his wound until the wound closed upon it and concealed it. He was found next day by a British patrol, with a smile of honorable pride upon his countenance, and with life just sufficient to point to the fatal depository of his secret.

In searching the body the cause of his death was found, for the surgeon declared that the wound in itself was not mortal, but was rendered so by the irritation of the paper.

Thus fell this patriot soldier—in rank a corporal, he was in mind a hero. His name was O'Lavery, and he came from the parish of Moira, in County Down, Ireland.—Youth's Companion.

Appearances May Deceive.

Should you happen to see a girl walking along the street with her face wreathed in placid smiles, don't take it for granted that she feels perfectly contented and happy. For the truth is that—

She may be having a nerve destroying argument with herself as to whether her skirt and waist meet properly in the back. She may have a tiny hole in her shoe and be perfectly wretched over the thought of getting her silk stockings soiled.

She may be on the verge of insanity because she knows that the one pin with which she fastened her skirt is going to give way.

She may be conscious of a big chunk of soot that has found lodgment on the end of her nose.

She may remember that there is but one hairpin in her hair, and that it would be just her luck if it were all to tumble down.

She may hear a little snap and may know that her garter has broken. That, however, is simply too horrible for words.—New York Advertiser.

Kezanlik is beyond all dispute the sweetest smelling place on earth. It lies on the upper Tunja, near the foot of the Shipka pass, in a valley full of rosefields. Kezanlik is the chief seat of the industry in attar of roses. It takes 20,000 of the roses that grow in that valley to yield by distillation as much genuine attar or otto of roses as equals in weight a 50 cent piece.—Exchange.

"ASH BARREL JIMMY."

The First Convert of the Salvation Army
In America.

Our first convert in America is still living and serving the army in Boston. The history of his reform is a remarkable one.

The conversion of the first of a mighty multitude was brought about by Commissioner Railton, then in command of the American forces of the army, and Superintendent Thomas Byrnes of the New York police. Mr. Byrnes was an inspector of police at the time, early in 1880.

It is safe to say that in Salvation Army circles there are very few who do not know Jimmy, by reputation at least. Jimmy was a thief and drunkard when converted in New York in March, 1880. His name is James Kemp.

Three times Jimmy narrowly escaped losing his life. On one occasion he was nearly frozen to death outside Billy McGlory's notorious dive. On another occasion he was so brutally beaten in a Water street dive that he was supposed to be dead. The morgue wagon was called by the police, and the bruised and battered body, apparently dead, was carried to the morgue. When it, or rather he, arrived there some of the doctors made the discovery that Jimmy still lived, and so he was taken to the hospital, where he remained four months. His last narrow escape from death was when he drank a quantity of spirits of wine which he found in a cellar. Jimmy drank so much he went raving mad and tried to hang himself. He was sent to prison for three months for attempting suicide.

The first Saturday afternoon in March, 1880, Jimmy started out to have some amusement, and hearing that the Salvation Army, which had just arrived from England, was going "to show" at Harry Hill's notorious resort he concluded to go there and see what kind of people the soldiers were. When he arrived at Hill's, he found that there was an admission fee, and he, with a drunkard's economy, determined to spend the price of admission in a different manner. Toward night he strolled into a dive in Water street, where his Whyo friends painted his back and served his face the same way and wound up the performance by rolling the unfortunate man in the sawdust of the dive floor. Jimmy, after submitting to their treatment, thought they would let him stay there all night; but alas, they kicked him out on the street.

Just as Jimmy reached the sidewalk his cap blew off and fell into an ash barrel which was standing near the door of the den. Jimmy tried to recover it, but in doing so lost his balance and fell head first into the barrel. He struggled to get out, but all his efforts were in vain. He seemed to be there to stay.

A short time after Jimmy's acrobatic feat a policeman came along, and seeing a man's legs in the barrel set to work to discover who was the owner of them and why he had them in such a position. He took out his club and struck the inverted man on the soles of his feet. These means are sometimes resorted to by policemen to arouse drunken men.

From the depths of the barrel came a voice which the policeman at once recognized. He rapped for assistance, and when another officer appeared on the scene an effort was made to get Jimmy from his novel but painful position. They pulled at the protruding feet, but Jimmy failed to respond, his clothes having been driven through the barrel. They pulled until the old rotten shoes gave way and were left in their hands. The policemen then threw the barrel down on its side, and laying hold of the unfortunate man's feet they dragged the barrel and its howling occupant toward the police station.

A pitiful sight was poor Jimmy when he reached the station. His face, which had been blackened by the tongs in the dive, was all battered and bruised, and the paint on his face, mingled with blood, was strongly suggestive of a scalped Indian. His clothes were all torn and his shoes gone. How complete the ruin! How perfect the wreck!

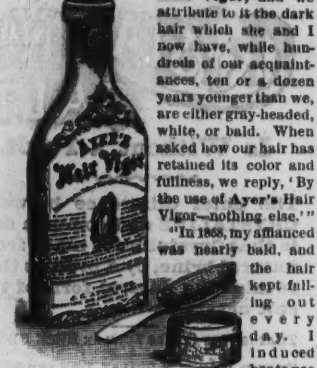

Superintendent Byrnes suggested that the Salvation Army be allowed to try its hand on the man, and the result was his conversion, since which time he has served faithfully in its ranks.—Boston Herald.

A Gentleman

Who formerly resided in Connecticut, but who now resides in Honolulu, writes: "For 25 years past, my wife and I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and we attribute to it the dark hair which she and I now have, while hundreds of our acquaintances, ten or a dozen years younger than we, are either gray-headed, white, or bald. When asked how our hair has retained its color and fullness, we reply, 'By the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor—nothing else.'"

"In 1868, my affianced was nearly bald, and the hair kept falling out every day. I induced her to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and very soon, it not only checked any further loss of hair, but produced an entirely new growth, which has remained luxuriant and glossy to this day. I can recommend this preparation to all in need of a genuine hair-restorer. It is all that it is claimed to be."—Antonio Alarun, Rector, Tex.

IN BOSTON MARKETS

Produce Dealers Doing Good Business With Profit.

Butter Market Short of Supply—Trade in Vegetables Large and Prices Better. Large Receipts of All Kinds of Fruit.

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The Boston produce markets are very busy just now. Almost every dealer is doing a good business and takes care to let no business go through his hands without some profit to himself. The farmer, however, cannot complain, for his products now find a ready sale at prices which are quite remunerative.

The Butter Trade.
is rather short of supply. Receipts are growing quite light, so as to necessitate the withdrawing of stock from cold storage. During the last few days the withdrawals have become quite heavy and should this long continue next spring will see a great scarcity of butter. This would be but a repetition of the conditions last spring, when all kinds of butter was scarce and high. It is certainly hoped that western producers will soon be able to supply our current needs, that the stock in storage may remain untouched. Prices for butter this week are: Northern creamery, from 27 to 29 cents, according to the quantity purchased. New York and Vermont dairy butter is in fair demand at from 21 to 24 cents, and cold stored butter at 24 1/2 to 25 cents.

Trade in Vegetables.
has been large and prices have been a little better this week. Conditions which have kept the market in somewhat limited supply are the cause for the upward tendency in prices. The potato crop is being harvested and the supply is coming in in goodly amounts. The best Houlton bring 50 cents per bushel, with Aroostook and rose and hebrons at a few cents less. Bristol Ferry rose and hebrons bring $1.75 per barrel. Tomatoes are holding quite steady at about 40 to 50 cents per bushel for both ripe and green. Onions are 75 cents per bushel. Marrow squash 60 to 75 cents per bushel, while turban brings $1 to $1.25. Corn brings all the way from 40 to 75 cents a bushel, and celery is coming in for about $3.50 per long box. Green string beans bring $1 to $1.25 a bushel; also lima and horticultural at the same figure.

The Fruit Market.
never looked better than today, with its large supply of every variety in the finest perfection of growth. There is a good demand for all fruit and prices hold quite steady. Many grapes are now coming and some are very fine. Concord and Delaware are worth $3 a case of 12 baskets, while the latter bring $1.50 for the same amount. The supply of apples seems quite limited. Some Gravenstein fruit looks fine and brings as high as $3 to $4 a barrel. Harvey's are worth $2.75 to $3. Porters and Pippins bring about $2.25 to $2.50 per barrel.

The Quotations.
BUTTER—The butter market holds very firm. Trade is only moderate, however. Fancy creameries, in small packages, $2.50; firsts, $2.40; imitation creamery, $2.30; factory, $2.20; northern creamery, extra, $2.10; northern dairy, $2.00; eastern creamery, extra, $1.90. These are prices for round lots. Jobbing lots and fancy lots cost more. Potatoes—Potatoes are doing a little better, but sweet potatoes are in oversupply with the market, easier. Eastern, barrels, $1.25; 50 lbs. Hampden, $1.20; 50 lbs. Houlton rose and hebrons, 50c; Aroostook rose and hebrons, 45c; New York stars and burbanks, 45c; Virginia cloth heads, extra, $2.25; Jersey bulls, $2.25; double heads, $2.30.

MEAT—Cornmeal holds steady at the advance noted yesterday. Kint in 100 lb. bags, $2.25 per bag; bag meal, $1.00; yellow granulated, $2.00; ground, cut and rolled oatmeal, $1.00; 100 lb. bag, $1.00; 50 lb. bag, $1.00; 25 lb. bag, $1.00; 10 lb. bag, $1.00; 5 lb. bag, $1.00; 2 1/2 lb. bag, $1.00; 1 1/4 lb. bag, $1.00; 3/4 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/2 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/4 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/8 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/16 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/32 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/64 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/128 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/256 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/512 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/1024 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/2048 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/4096 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/8192 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/16384 lb. bag, $1.00; 1/32768 lb. bag, $1.00; ## OFFICER ASSAULTED.

Officer Harris states that in obedience to the call of duty he ordered Thomas Haverly away from the vicinity of the B & M Depot, about 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, because he was drunken, and used vile and vulgar language to him and to others.

His refusing to depart and persisting in his evil course led the officer to arrest him; breaking from the grasp of Mr. Harris he fled but was overtaken near Mr. Pilling's house and secured with the assistance of Messrs. James Brierley, 1st, and Jacob Moss after having kicked Mr. Moss twice during the struggle.

In the station house while attempting to lodge his prisoner Officer Harris was seized by the beard and pulled to the floor and during the struggle the back of his right hand was severely bitten by his victim. Nevertheless, the officer stuck to his task pluckily and with the assistance of Frank Eaton soon had his man in the cell, in charge of Officer Pinkham.

A large congregation of leisure citizens awaited the opening of the court Monday morning, the company being out of proportion to the accommodations of the little building.

Haverly pleaded guilty to the charge of assaulting an officer, and testimony at the preliminary examination was given by Messrs. Harris, Brierley, Moss, Dr. Weil and Wm. Donovan, against the accused.

Dr. Weil testified that blood poisoning might be a possible result of the wounds received by Mr. Harris, although he would not say it would be a probable result.

Judge Weil ordered Haverly to recognize in the sum of $1000 to await the action of the grand jury Monday Oct. 1st. In default of bail he was committed to the jail at Lawrence.

Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Arthur Bliss and H. M. Whitney & Co., Druggists.

The Old and the New.

Soon after the conclusion of the report of Mr. J. D. W. French as secretary and treasurer of the Village Improvement Association at the adjourned meeting at the Congregational Church vestry, Wednesday evening, the identity of the old organization was cast away, or rather merged into an incorporated society. According to the report of Mr. French there was a balance of $22.23 in the hands of the treasurer Jan. 1. Receipts from various sources: Town, for planting trees, $100; Cochichewick Fishing Club (balance in treasury), $78.79; Beverly Improvement Society, $15.00; item of $45.90 from Town. The various payments for various items aggregated $190.02. Balance on hand, $119.90.

In the secretary's report Mr. French mentioned, regarding the work done, the destruction of the catpillars' eggs in various parts of the town by the children, and the planting of about 62 trees during the past year; most of the latter were rock maple. This absorbed about half of the appropriation, and other trees would be planted this fall, when necessary places were found. He said at some future time he wished to call attention to Chap. 472 of the Acts and Resolves of 1893, relative to the establishing of a building line on public ways.

The reports were accepted, and on motion of Mr. Carney a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. French for his valued services in the past as an interested officer. On motion of Mr. French it was voted that all funds and property in charge of any member of the North Andover Village Improvement Association be transferred to the North Andover Improvement Society when formed.

The committee on by-laws reported through the chairman, Mr. D. W. Carney, but the broad and liberal ideas stated in the object of the corporation provoked considerable desultory discussion, until headed off by Mr. S. D. Stevens. The broadening principle was sustained, and the by-laws, which were acted upon severally and finally submitted for action in entirety, were adopted without material change as reported by the special committee, Messrs. D. W. Carney, Sam D. Stevens, J. D. W. French. On motion of Mr. Carney the chairman appointed a committee of three to retire and present a list of candidates for officers of the new society. The committee consisted of Mr. D. W. Carney, Mrs. George G. Davis, Mr. S. D. Stevens, and the list submitted was adopted, except that Mr. Stillings was a subsequent choice for treasurer.

The officers elected were: President, Hon. Moses T. Stevens; vice-presidents, J. A. Wiley, N. P. Frye; secretary, Mr. J. D. W. French; treasurer, Mr. Stillings; executive committee, Mr. D. W. Carney, Mrs. Isaac Osgood, Mrs. Moses T. Stevens, Mrs. Wm. J. Dale, Mrs. E. A. Baldwin, Mr. George E. Curwen.

On motion of Mr. S. D. Stevens it was voted to recommit the by-laws to the committee from whom they originated for technical revision, the committee to report at a future meeting. The society was then declared duly incorporated. Adjourned until 7.30 o'clock Monday evening, at the same place.

Mrs. Hannah Osgood Emery.

The Boston Journal of Monday contained the following item:

Mrs. Hannah Osgood Emery, widow of the late Oliver Hubbard Emery, died Sept. 16, at her residence in Medford. She was born May 14, 1800.

Mrs. Emery retained the use of her faculties till the last; was a great reader and was well informed on the affairs of her country; remembered many incidents of the War of 1812, and saw General Lafayette when on his visit to America. Her father was a Revolutionary soldier, who enlisted at the age of 17 and marched with his company from North Andover, Mass., to Boston and served during the war.

Mrs. Emery was dearly beloved by all who knew her, and died fully in the faith of the Christian religion in which she fully believed.

Mrs. Emery leaves five children: George W. Emery, ex-Governor of Utah; Mrs. J. B. Perkins of Medford, Mrs. Daniel Hooke of New Hampshire, Mrs. J. J. Frye of Portland, Me., and Mrs. D. A. Green of Washington, D. C.

The funeral was held on the 18th at her late residence, 117 Winthrop Street, Medford, at 12 M.

Republican Caucus.

GREENHAIGE DELEGATES.

There were about one hundred people present at the caucus at Stevens Hall last evening, an unusual number for the choice of delegates to the various conventions. Chairman Greene of the town committee called the meeting to order, and organization proceeded with the choice of F. W. Frisbee chairman. Cap. Reeves and others declined the position of clerk, and F. A. Warren was the final choice. The party was entitled to be represented by four delegates to the state convention. On motion of Mr. S. C. Rea a nominating committee of three was appointed by the chair to retire and submit a list of four names for each candidate for gubernatorial honors, viz: Greenhaige, Pillsbury, Hart. The committee appointed was Messrs. Greene, Halliday, Rea. The nominees reported for Greenhaige were Messrs. Halliday, Rea, Wills, and Gilman. The remainder of the list, with two exceptions turned out to be Greenhaige men, also, and these two men were absent. The vote appointing a nominating committee was reconsidered, and on motion of Mr. A. W. Badger a marking list was opened and the candidates were marked for, electing William Halliday, S. C. Rea, T. P. Wills, T. K. Gilman.

The same method was adopted in the choice of the delegates to the other conventions: county and councillor, W. H. Hayes, A. W. Badger, Andrew Reeves, F. A. Warren; senatorial, F. W. Frisbee, J. C. Poor, Nathaniel Gage, J. A. Montgomery. Each set of delegates was authorized to fill vacancies. Messrs. Albert McDonald and W. H. Hayes were excused from the town committee and substituted by Messrs. Ralph Blake and James C. Poor. The town committee now consists of Messrs. E. W. Greene, T. P. Wills, Ralph Blake, J. C. Poor, and F. A. Warren.

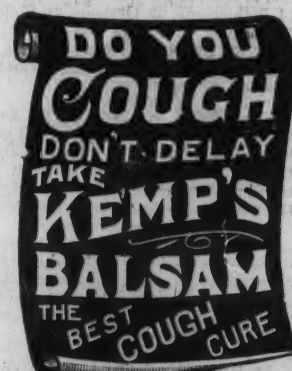

Mr. Rufus Goodwin, formerly an overseer in the wood department of the Davis and Furber Machine Co., died at his home in Ayers Village Monday morning, aged about 68 years. The funeral occurred Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the remains taken to Lawrence for interment.

Lawrence.

The danger of using kerosene oil in starting fires was demonstrated again Sunday in this city. Mrs. Delia McGovern used this method and died from the injuries received. Her body was burned from her ankles to her head. Her clothing caught fire from the flames and before anyone reached her she was shockingly burned. She was 33 years old and leaves a husband and one child.

The new filtering gallery is completed and water was let in Wednesday afternoon. The gallery is the only one of its kind in the United States, the nearest approach to it being in England. It is considered by the Engineering News to be the most complete method of filtration brought out yet. Work was commenced upon the filter bed about a year ago. The area of the filter bed is 2 1/2 acres, and its proposed daily capacity is 5,000,000 gallons. The excavation is seven feet below low water in the river. The water passes through a conduit from the river, then through layers of sand and stone in the filter bed and thence into the pump well of the pumping station. The pumps are to be run about 10 hours a day. About five hours before they stop, the inlet gate supplying the filter bed is to be closed, and the pumps continuing will uncover the surface of the sand and drain the sand nearly to the bottom and allow it to fill with air. The inlet gate is to be opened again about an hour before the pumps start, when the sand will be filled and gradually overflowed. The intermission once in 24 hours is found by experiments to be sufficient to secure the advantages of intermittent filtration. The fine river silt, which will be slowly infiltrated into the body of the sand, will be nearly all retained upon, or very near, the surface. To maintain an even passage of water per day, it will be necessary to remove from the whole surface of the bed from 1-8 to 1-4 inch of sediment each month, and a larger amount during the spring freshet. The sand removed is to be replaced by clean sand. The sum of $55,000 has been appropriated for the construction of the gallery.
